God used Paul to preach the gospel to the Gentiles through three remarkable missionary journeys. Other apostles joined him as he traveled. The first journey included sailing to Cyprus where Paul preached in Salamis and Paphos. Paul and Barnabas continued on by boat to Perga in Pamphylia, departed Perga and came to Antioch in Pisidia, moved on to Iconium, and continued to preach, eventually going to Lystra and Derbe (Acts 13–14).

As Paul preached in these cities, he would start by telling the Jews that God had fulfilled the promise of a Savior made to their fathers (Acts 13:32–33). But, many of these Jews did not believe. Often it was the Gentiles who begged to hear Paul preach (Acts 13:42). As Paul preached, the Word was received by many, and the Jews became envious. They openly opposed the things Paul taught (Acts 13:45). Paul turned his attention and preaching to the Gentiles (Acts 13:46).

Reactions to Paul's message of salvation were unpredictable. In Iconium, there were unbelieving Jews who tried to stir the Gentiles up and poison their minds against the truth. Still, Paul and Barnabas remained a long time, speaking boldly in the Lord, who allowed them to do signs and wonders as witness to God's grace and truth (Acts 14:2–3).

In the city of Lystra, God healed a crippled man through Paul (Acts 14:9–10). Impressed, people believed Paul and Barnabas were gods and prepared to sacrifice to them (Acts 14:11–13). Paul quickly denied this and prevented them from offering sacrifices. He explained that their gods and sacrifices were the very things they should turn away from, and instead they should turn to the living God (Acts 14:15).

The people of Lystra quickly changed. They were persuaded by unbelieving Jews to turn against Paul. They did so violently and stoned him, dragged him out of the city, and left him for dead (Acts 14:19). God spared Paul's life in Lystra, and he moved on and continued to preach the gospel.

What if your friend says he just can't believe the Bible. He thinks believing in Jesus and the Bible is dumb. What could you say?

The Bible is a book about God. God inspired men to write it. It tells us who Jesus is and what Jesus did for sinners like us. It is far from dumb. In fact, it tells the best news ever—that the Creator of the universe would provide a way for sinners to know Him personally! The Bible has never changed. It has been the same for thousands of years. That's because it is God's Word. A lot of people would rather believe in what men say. But the words of men are always changing! Nothing man says or does stays the same. But, the Bible tells us that the Word of the Lord will endure forever. Please don't think it's dumb. It is wonderful truth. And the message in it can bring hope and joy and eternal life to those who believe.

Saved it is the pow'r of God.
