FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MEDIA INVITED TO THE ONE-OF-A-KIND 'BETHLEHEM'S BLESSINGS'

Christmas Events at the Creation Museum Open to the Public Dec. 12

WHAT: "Bethlehem's Blessings," featuring a live nativity presentation, elaborate outdoor lighting and a special "Christmas Star" planetarium program, starts at the Creation Museum on Friday, December 12. The outdoor display will be free to the public and is part of several special Christmas events and attractions on the museum's beautiful grounds (as well as inside the museum itself).

WHO: Staffed by volunteers from the Creation Museum, the live nativity features a replica of Bible-times village streets, complete with shopkeepers, Roman soldiers and carolers. The museum's petting zoo animals will also take part in the Christmas display.

WHEN: Media invited Friday, Dec. 12.
5:45-8:00 p.m. EST – check-in at the museum's information desk in the lobby

Christmas treats, hummus and pita bread, and warm beverages will be served – members of the media are invited to bring their families for this special sneak preview.

WHERE: Outdoors on the grounds of the Creation Museum, plus inside the planetarium for the program "The Christmas Star"
2800 Bullittsburg Church Road,
Petersburg, KY 41080
(exit 11 off I-275; seven miles west of the Cincinnati Airport)

DETAILS: The "Bethlehem's Blessings" Christmas Celebration also includes hayrides, seasonal lights and foods, and Christmas Concerts each Friday evening. Outdoor events are all free to the public. The planetarium program is $7.00 with museum admission (or $8.00 alone) and the Christmas Concerts featuring Ray Cummins, Buddy Davis and Geri Campbell are $2.00.

The museum itself will be free and open to the public on December 24 (9 a.m. – 3 p.m.) as a Christmas gift to the community as the museum celebrates the gift of God to the world: Jesus Christ. The celebration runs through Jan. 4.
